

REP US Project

A project lead by the Center for Information and Research on Civic Learning and Engagement (CIRCLE) based at the Tisch College of Civic Life at Tufts University.

Join Our Youth Advisory Group!

About the Project

We believe youth media creation and more diverse youth voices in media can serve as an onramp to young people's participation in election conversations and voting. This project will explore the role that youth media creation and more diverse youth voices in media can support more young people engaged in elections. We will produce new research and use this knowledge to directly fuel strategic communications to support more civic media creation and its role in forwarding youth election engagement

The Youth Advisory Group Opportunity

Leading a project focused on research centered on young people, we believe it is critical to receive input and guidance from youth stakeholders.

As a Youth Advisory group member, you would serve at minimum a 6-month term, reviewing and providing input and guidance on the Youth Media Project's activities. One example is providing input on research questions we will be asking young people related to youth media topics and providing suggestions for other research questions you think are important that explores the relationship between youth voice, youth media creation and participating in election conversations and voting. We also value your time, so we are providing a modest stipend for participating – reviewing material, attending monthly calls, and providing input and suggestions.
